Entry Concept

A : Keeping the front simple and 'lush' looking will make the front make it feel like an elegant court yard. The olives and rose arch are positioned to help block the front door from the driveway's line of sight.

B : This rose arch will help separate the driveway from front of the house introducing a courtyard effect. This should make the entry more interesting.

Garden Area/ Back

I love the idea of putting a large garden in the back with flower beds. The only challenges that I saw would be the privacy from other neighbors and keeping the plants away from the house for fire protection. The hedge can be planted and maintained in such a way to grow high enough to block houses but NOT the view (about 5.5 ft). There is a very small space of grass that I think will help keep the back a little more inviting, and very low maintenance.

C: Raised garden beds with gravel for walking and ease of maintenance. And fountain in the for sound, birds, bees and feeling.
